MARKET COMMENTARY

by Per Amundsen, Head of Research

The Westpac-MI Consumer Sentiment Index jumped again in November by 2.5% to 107.5 after rising 11.9% in October driven by recovery outside of Victoria. In the last three months the index has risen to its highest level since November 2013 – a seven year high. The AiG Manufacturing Index fell by 4.2 points to 52.1 but stayed in expansion above 50 after jumping 9.6 points last month. South Australia fell slightly but stayed in expansion and Victoria recorded its first month of expansion since March 2020 which was great news. At its December meeting, as widely expected, the RBA Board left the Cash Rate at the record low of 0.10% when they held their last meeting of the year, reconvening in February 2021. After the second quarter GDP figures showed a 7.0% decline it was very well received when the third quarter GDP came in at a better than expected 3.3% increase bringing the recession to an end. The focus over the next few quarters will no doubt remain on unemployment with the latest November rate being 7.0% and expectations of a slow but steady improvement ranging from forecasts of 5.0% to 6.0% by the end of 2022. CoreLogic housing prices for November continued a good run of the past few months surprising many with their resilience. National Housing values were up by 0.8% building on last month after five months of consistent declines. In Sydney prices were up 0.4% while in Melbourne the rise was 0.7%. The rest of the capital cities were all up everyone over 1% except Brisbane at 0.6%. There remains quite a difference between Houses and Units with Houses on a national basis up 1.1% while Units were only up 0.2%. As a result of our comments above on Residential, we are seeing the start of a recovery and we have made a few changes to our Ratings and Trends. As noted previously Retail which had already been struggling is still experiencing difficult times and we wait now for its recovery. Industrial has proven to be very resilient and appears to be everyone's favourite. Office continues to await the longer term response of businesses to work from home attitudes but we remain more positive than some.

MARKET COMMENTARY

by Lauren Ryan, Investor Relations

In the month of November Thinktank settled over $100 million in new loans which is the largest month of originations since our business started in 2006. It was only two months ago that Thinktank issued the largest CMBS transaction in Australia, it really is a year for milestones notwithstanding numerous challenges. Domestic border restrictions continue to ease as we edge closer to the holiday season, allowing family and friends to embrace for the first time in 9 months in some cases. My brother lives in Mackay and my family is thrilled to be able to see him for a few weeks over Christmas and New Year. On other fronts, our hardship team continues to work hard with the declining number of borrowers who still require support with the total percentage of loans in hardship decreasing now to 5.6% of our portfolio. The outlook for small business continues to appear positive as consumers start planning and booking their December lunches and dinners with friends and family. I can only speak for my local establishments but it is very promising to see so many bustling cafes and restaurants at all times of the week. Whilst the prospect of a vaccine is exciting, we can't let our guard down as we have seen how quickly conditions can change. In November the High Yield Trust returned 6.52%.
